Affidavit of Vince Sanders

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF JACKSON COUNTY, MISSOURI
AT KANSAS CITY

STATE OF MISSOURI, et al.

Plaintiffs,

v.

Case No. 2616-CV11773

SHAMAN BOTANICALS, LLC, et al.

Defendants.

AFFIDAVIT OF STEPHEN VINCENT SANDERS, II

I, Stephen Vincent Sanders, II, being duly sworn, declare under oath as follows:

1. I am an adult individual competent to make this affidavit and have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein.

2. I am the sole member of SVS Enterprises, LLC, which in turn is the sole member of Shaman Botanicals, LLC, CBD American Shaman, LLC, American Shaman Online, LLC, American Shaman Ecommerce, LLC, and Konig Products, LLC. These companies are commonly referred to as American Shaman, and for purposes of this affidavit I will use the term American Shaman in that manner. Collectively, American Shaman employs approximately 300 individuals.

I. The Start of American Shaman

3. American Shaman began in 2015. As our Shaman name implies, our company aims to use naturally occurring products and plants to support overall wellness. Our first foray into this industry was with cannabidiol, commonly known as CBD, which originates from the cannabis plant like tetrahydrocannabinol (THC).

4. I first became interested in CBD when my uncle was diagnosed with cancer. I have long been concerned about the risks associated with prescription narcotics and believe that natural products, if harnessed correctly, can be a powerful agent in supporting wellness. I wanted to get my uncle access to CBD to assist him managing his pain and, when none was commercially available, I set about making it myself. American Shaman was then born for this purpose from that effort.

5. There were many legal challenges during the early days of selling CBD. We were sued multiple times and frequently disagreed with the FDA about the safety and legality of CBD. Nonetheless, I continued to sell CBD in spite of these legal challenges at great financial risk to me personally because I believed in the products and further believed that a consumer has a right to purchase naturally occurring products to support their own wellness.

6. In 2018, the federal Farm Bill essentially legalized hemp-derived CBD products. As a result, CBD is now sold almost everywhere and has become generally accepted in the public marketplace. Publicly traded companies sell CBD. It is sold at grocery stores. I take great pride in all of this and believe that American Shaman helped CBD obtain the respected and accepted status it currently enjoys.

II. American Shaman Manufactures and Sells Dietary Supplements

7. When I first began making CBD, I became aware of the distinction between dietary supplements and drugs (including true prescription drugs and controlled substances). Dietary supplements contain dietary ingredients. CBD, for example, is a dietary supplement derived from hemp. I believe CBD is an old dietary ingredient because it was marketed long before the adoption of the Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act of 1994 (DSHEA).

8. All American Shaman products, including CBD, are marketed and sold as dietary supplements. American Shaman does not sell drugs. Our labels contain "supplement facts" and a disclaimer that "[t]hese statements have not been evaluated by the Food and Drug Administration. This product is not intended to diagnose, treat, cure or prevent any disease." This is standard packaging and labeling for dietary supplements under FDA guidance.

9. Beyond CBD, I have been interested in developing other dietary supplements to improve consumer wellness. Around 2020, I first began studying kratom (Mitragyna speciosa). Kratom, like CBD, is a botanical. It is a plant that is from the same family as the coffee plant and is native to Southeast Asia. Kratom has been consumed for centuries in a variety of manners. In the United States, kratom is primarily consumed in the form of powder, capsules, or extracts. Kratom, in these forms, seems to be achieving some level of societal acceptance. It is sold at various retailers and online. The City of Kansas City, Missouri requires retailers to obtain a license to sell kratom products, but otherwise allows its sale. American Shaman does not sell raw kratom leaf, kratom powder, or conventional kratom products of the kind typically sold under a retail kratom license.

III. American Shaman's Sale of 7-OH Products as Dietary Supplements

10. I recognize the reported benefits of kratom as many users report that it alleviates pain management symptoms, supports relaxation, and improves wellbeing. Despite all of these reports, I never really cared for kratom because the taste does not appeal to me. But I was intrigued by its possibilities, so I began studying a way to harness its benefits and deliver it to consumers in a more appealing way. For that reason, my focus was not on selling kratom itself, but on developing separately formulated products derived from the kratom plant.

11. The principal constituents in kratom include two alkaloids: mitragynine and 7-hydroxymitragynine (7-OH). When kratom is consumed, the human body converts a portion of mitragynine into 7-OH through the liver. I found that we could isolate 7-OH in tablet form and achieve the same benefits of kratom that had been reported by consumers and experts in the field. American Shaman's 7-OH products are not sold as raw kratom, kratom leaf, or conventional kratom products. American Shaman does not sell products marketed by the company as "kratom."

12. After years of study, American Shaman first began selling 7-OH products in late 2023. We believe 7-OH is a lawful dietary supplement because 7-OH is a metabolite of kratom, which was marketed in the United States prior to DSHEA. Like CBD, our 7-OH products have always been manufactured, labeled, marketed and sold as supplements. They contain supplement facts and a disclaimer that they have not been evaluated by the FDA. Again, this is standard packaging and labeling for dietary supplements under FDA guidance. American Shaman has never marketed 7-OH products as a prescription drugs or FDA-approved drugs. We also have not marketed these products as raw kratom or conventional kratom products.

13. The FDA treats American Shaman's 7-OH products as dietary supplements, not drugs. For example, the FDA issued a warning letter to American Shaman in June 2025 analyzing 7-OH in American Shaman's products as a "new dietary ingredient" subject to regulation as a dietary supplement. The FDA has never argued that American Shaman's 7-OH products are drugs, and to the best of my knowledge, the Attorney General's office for the State of Missouri stands alone in making that argument.

14. Launching 7-OH has been challenging. The demand has been enormous, and our company has devoted a significant part of its infrastructure to keep up. American Shaman has invested millions of dollars into research, safety and science, and will continue to do so because we believe so strongly in the product.

IV. American Shaman's Commitment to Product Safety

15. American Shaman takes product safety seriously and has made substantial efforts to ensure that the 7-OH products it manufactures and sells are safe and reliable. Among other things, American Shaman employs a large team of chemists, quality control staff, and regulatory experts to ensure its manufacturing processes are appropriate and legally compliant.

16. As with any dietary supplement, there are naturally slight variations in finished product from batch to batch. American Shaman has been a leader in developing accurate and reliable testing protocols for 7-OH and performs lot release testing on each batch of 7-OH product that it manufactures and sells to ensure the represented 7-OH content of its products before they are approved for sale. Product batches that fail this release testing are quarantined for further evaluation. If a product fails to meet our manufacture criteria, it is destroyed.

17. All of our technicians handling 7-OH are trained in Shaman's good manufacturing practices (GMP). These GMP protocols include standardized written procedures which all employees are required to adhere to such as proper documentation, personal hygiene, personal protective equipment, cleaning techniques, line clearance, material control, ensuring ingredients are not expired, labeling, equipment maintenance and cleaning, labeling and package control, and other measures designed to prevent contamination and achieve uniformity in product manufacture.

18. American Shaman provides consumers with relevant information and warnings about its 7-OH products, including on-product labels that inform consumers of dosages and warn consumers about the potential for addiction, misuse, and health and safety; website information that informs consumers about the nature of these products, their ingredients, sourcing and testing, and provides additional safety information about use of the products. Representative materials are attached as Exhibit A.

19. American Shaman also has gone beyond what is legally required to restrict the sale of 7-OH products to consumers who are at least 21 years old. In fact, the Missouri legislature is currently considering legislation to regulate the sale of 7-OH products, and American Shaman already meets, or is taking steps to meet, many of those proposed regulations.

V. American Shaman's Cooperation and Transparency with the FDA

20. In June 2025, American Shaman received a warning letter from the FDA stating that it had "serious concerns" about the safety of Shaman Botanicals' 7-OH products. The warning letter also invited Shaman to submit any contrary evidence to the FDA. On August 19, 2025, American Shaman provided its response to the FDA warning letter, which outlined why the FDA's concerns were not legally or scientifically founded, and provided substantial evidence to support the safety of those products, including reports of two experts in medical toxicology, neuropharmacology, and/or drug safety who have reviewed preclinical safety data (including an in vitro study, a rodent study, and a canine study) to conclude that no serious toxicity is observed with 7-OH, which has a therapeutic potency and safety profile that is either the same or better than other compounds derived from kratom that are not the subject of FDA action. The FDA warning letter response also provided opinions from three experts in medical toxicology, opioid pharmacology, behavioral pharmacology, and/or public health surveillance who reviewed the available human data (including medical case reports, epidemiological surveillance data, and clinical outcome research) and concluded that there is no safety signal from 7-OH to support FDA's enforcement action. A true and correct copy of the warning letter response and attached materials is attached to American Shaman's Answer in this case.

21. As of today's date, the FDA has never addressed American Shaman's response to the warning letter. Instead, the FDA initiated an administrative detention action of Shaman's 7-OH inventory and an accompanying civil forfeiture action. See United States of America v. Undetermined quantities of dietary supplement products that are labeled or otherwise appear to contain 7-hydroxymitragynine, Case No. 4:25-cv-00917-RK, United States District Court, Western District of Missouri, Western Division (the "Detention Action"). American Shaman is actively defending the Detention Action and feels we are entitled to a robust dialogue about the volume of scientific evidence presented.

22. American Shaman is continuing to cooperate with the FDA in its investigation of 7-OH products and will continue to update the FDA on the body of scientific evidence to support the safe use of those products.

VI. American Shaman's Voluntary Product Recall

23. American Shaman also will continue to be transparent in its manufacture, sale and public statements on its 7-OH products. As the State of Missouri notes in its motion for TRO and preliminary injunction, American Shaman initiated a voluntary recall earlier this year of one specific lot of 7-OH products following the FDA's report that testing of one bottle of product from that lot showed elevated 7-OH concentration. It is important to note that this one bottle tested by the FDA had product above the stated concentration of 7-OH, but widescale testing of the lot in question repeatedly showed the lot had been properly concentrated. This includes: three (3) separate lot release tests that confirmed proper 7-OH concentration at the stated amount before the lot was released for sale; and five (5) confirmatory tests of a separate bottle of product from the same lot (performed after the FDA notified American Shaman of the issue), which showed these products had the stated concentration of 7-OH. It also must be noted that the FDA obtained additional samples of American Shaman 7-OH products that it tested and confirmed to be properly concentrated at the stated amount of 7-OH.

24. The high-concentration product the FDA tested appears to have been an isolated outlier. American Shaman is not aware of any other testing of any other product from the lot showing elevated 7-OH. American Shaman also is not aware of any products in other lots released for sale that have shown elevated 7-OH concentration. In an abundance of caution however, and because American Shaman takes the matter of safety seriously, it agreed to announce a voluntary recall of the subject lot. American Shaman agreed to the recall just nine days after being advised of the issue by the FDA and American Shaman published a press release effectuating the recall just four days after that. This fast action reflects American Shaman's commitment to product safety and transparency.

VII. American Shaman's Cooperation and Transparency with the State of Missouri

25. American Shaman has also cooperated with the State of Missouri's investigation of 7-OH products. In response to the State's Civil Investigative Demand, American Shaman provided comprehensive information on its manufacture, marketing and sale of 7-OH products and the safety information supporting those products. American Shaman also produced over 9,000 pages of documents in a monumental undertaking to be as thorough and transparent as possible.

26. The State of Missouri knows all the information outlined here on the demonstrated safety of 7-OH products, the lack of a public health crisis around those products, and the lack of any evidence suggesting injury from consumer use of American Shaman's 7-OH products. All the information was given to the State in American Shaman's CID response, including the information on the limited nature of the product recall and the evidence indicating the high-concentration product was a one-off, but the State cherry-picks and misrepresents that information to support the false narrative outlined in its motion that these products are equivalent to opioids and "gas station heroin."

VII. Additional Relevant Information

27. American Shaman has attempted to operate transparently, to label its products as supplements, to include standard FDA disclaimer language, to monitor product quality, and to respond to regulatory inquiries when raised.

28. American Shaman is not aware of consumer adverse-event reports suggesting that an immediate statewide injunction is necessary before the Court can consider the merits of the legal and scientific issues presented.

29. American Shaman does not sell raw kratom leaf, kratom powder, or conventional kratom products. To the extent Plaintiffs seek an injunction barring the sale of "kratom products," that request is broader than the products American Shaman actually sells.

30. American Shaman is prepared to continue cooperating with regulators, maintaining batch testing and COAs, and addressing product-specific concerns while the Court considers the parties' competing legal and scientific positions. In my view, an immediate TRO or preliminary injunction is not necessary to preserve the status quo, and would actually upset the status quo.

31. Many American Shaman employees work in roles directly or indirectly supporting the company's 7-OH products and related operations. If the requested injunction is entered, American Shaman will suffer immediate and likely catastrophic disruption to those operations and its business as a whole. Defendants will be forced to lay off the majority of their workforce, hundreds of employees. It is highly likely that if Plaintiffs' requested injunction is entered, American Shaman would have to confront numerous financial defaults and would be put completely out of business, rendering our 300-employee workforce unemployed.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAY NOT.

What is Mitragyna Speciosa?
Mitragyna Speciosa, derived from the leaves of the Mitragyna speciosa tree native to Southeast Asia, belongs to the coffee family, Rubiaceae. Often used as a stimulant and for discomfort relief, Mitragyna's primary active alkaloids, such as mitragynine and 7-hydroxymitragynine, interact with opioid receptors to deliver discomfort-reducing properties.

What is an Alkaloid?

Alkaloids are compounds found in Mitragyna Speciosa, with mitragynine being the most well-studied. Mitragynine and 7-hydroxymitragynine interact with the brain's opioid receptors, particularly the mu-opioid receptor, resulting in discomfort relief.

What Makes Advanced Alkaloids Products Unique?

Advanced Alkaloids products are crafted from potent alkaloids extracted from Mitragyna speciosa using high-quality and safe extraction processes. Premium leaf material is used to specifically extract and isolate the most beneficial alkaloids, resulting in unique experiences for each user. The formulations are designed to minimize negative side effects by using only the most effective parts of the Mitragyna speciosa plant and providing an isolated alkaloid instead of all parts, constituents and compounds of the plant.

What is 7-Hydroxymitragynine (7-OH)?

7-Hydroxymitragynine (7-OH) is a powerful alkaloid known for its superior intensity and effectiveness. Compared to mitragynine, 7-OH requires smaller amounts for the same effects, reducing the potential for unwanted reactions. It is renowned for its dynamic and vibrant profile, making deeper connections with the mind and providing a more enhanced experience. 7-OH is also superior in handling discomforts and promoting elevation, making it an optimal choice for alternative relief and positive feelings.

Legal and Safety Information

Mitragynine is legal in every state except Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Wisconsin. Consumers should consult state and local laws before purchasing or consuming any mitragynine product. Advanced Alkaloids formulations aim to lessen the plant components that could potentially cause negative side effects. However, it is important to consult a healthcare provider for personalized advice if considering the use of alkaloids while on any prescribed medications.

Summary

Advanced Alkaloids 7OH Chewable Tablets offer a refined and enhanced experience for those seeking alternative relief and elevation. With potent, isolated alkaloids and carefully crafted formulations, these chewable tablets provide unique benefits and a superior user experience. Try them today to experience the upgraded effects of 7-hydroxymitragynine.

Disclaimers: By using this product, you accept full responsibility for any adverse events or health complications that may arise from its use. Manufacturers & Resellers assume no responsibility or liability for the use or misuse of this product. Alkaloids may interact distinctively with pain relief remedies, opioids, anxiolytics, antidepressants, and soothing drugs, as it can modify certain bodily processes. Consult with your physician prior to using alkaloids, especially if you take any medications. It is important to note that the use of alkaloids with alcohol or sleep-inducing drugs may exacerbate their effects, therefore it is not recommended. For safety reasons, it is recommended you abstain from combining alkaloids with other substances. Although there aren't studies conclusively showing addiction related to alkaloids, there are anecdotal reports of people developing an addiction to alkaloid products. If you feel you are developing an addiction to this or any product, consult a physician or an addiction center immediately. Do not use this product if pregnant or nursing. Do not operate heavy machinery, watercraft or motor vehicles while using. Not for sale to minors, 21+ only!

HEALTH AND SAFETY WARNING: This product contains psychoactive alkaloids, which may include mitragynine, 7-hydroxymitragynine, and mitragynine pseudoindoxyl, which interact with the human opioid system. These alkaloids are active at all known opioid receptors - mu, kappa and delta each affecting them in various ways and with various potencies.

WARNING: This product may be habit-forming. Regular use can lead to physical and/or psychological dependence, addiction, and withdrawal symptoms may occur upon discontinuation. If you suspect addiction, seek medical help immediately.

DO NOT use if pregnant or nursing. Do not operate vehicles or machinery while using. Not for sale to persons under 21.

DO NOT use this product if you are taking medications, especially opioid medications, other medications (e.g., pain relievers, opioids, antidepressants, blood pressure drugs, MAO inhibitors, stimulants, antihistamines) or if you consume alcohol, as these interactions may increase health risks. This product should not be used daily or for prolonged periods. Consult your doctor before using if you have a medical condition or are on prescription medications.
